Washington, Sept. 3.—The report missioner of labor, on the anthracite coal strike, was made public today, Commissioner Wright finds that there is no confidence existing between the employes and their employers. This he believes is one of the chief causes of difference between the operators and miners. He suggests that it would be reasonable and just for the operators to concede at once a nine-hour day for a period of six months as an experinent. He suggests that there should be organized a joint committee on conciliation, composed of representatives of the operators and a new union of anthracite employes, to which all grievances should be referred for investigation, and that their decision should be final and binding upon all parties and that there should be no interference with the non-union men Commissioner Wright says that the facts seen to show that the officers of the Miners' union, with perhaps one or two exceptions, believed that many of the alleged wrongs endured by the miners might be corrected by appeals to the employers. Loss to the Miners.

When it is shown that a ton of coal. says Mr. Wright, contains a varying percentage of refuse as it comes from the mine, it is difficult to see the force of the argument why it should not be weighed and the miner paid for the work he does. At least the operators, he thinks, ought to share in the loss of labor in mining impurities.

The demand of the miners that wages be increased 10 per cent in the rates per ton to those men who perform contract work, and 10 per cent reduction in the time of those who work by the day is backed up by the state-ment that after the increase which was granted in 1900 the prices of all commodities in the mining region were advanced accordingly. They urge that it is exceedingly difficult for them to live properly on the present wages.

The reduction of time is put forward by the miners and backed by the statement that their work takes only about 200 days in a year, and for the remainder of the time they are prac-

MORTENSEN IN STATE PRISON

Taken From the County Jail to the Penitentiary to Await His Execution on Oct. 17-Verses Written by the Condemned Man.

POEMS WRITTEN BY PETER MORTENSEN.

Midnight of Life.

O. judge not against me, kind stranger, Your friendship I fain would retain. My faith in the "Child of the Manger" Grows stronger with each passing day.

Though a cloud now hangs o'er my future And a blight has come into my life, Yet down in the bleak, glimmering future, A ray of bright sunshine I see

Like the Norman of old on the sea; And I'll dance on the ocean of trouble, With my loved ones so happy I'll be.

Life's dream has been thus rudely shaken By the hands of this cold, cruel world, And though friends my course have forsaken, My God will join in my cause.

And bring to my soul sweet salvation, This freedom so dear to us all.

I listen to the voice of inspiration For its voice seems so mellow and low, Like a beautiful dream from the angels, As it falls around my pillow at night, And sweet visions of wife and babies

To My Friend.

Finds echo in my heart day and night.

Henrietta: Your sympathy seems to be mine, Such tokens as yours new courage gives, And will wear throughout all time; And as the years glide swiftly by, And as the years gine switty 19,
And memory's dim page you may turn,
I hope you'll linger in fond recollection
For a friend whom in sorrow you found.
And may the Christ remember you ever
When jewels he'll set in his crown,
And let sunshine come into your pathway
To cheer you on life's dreary way.
